The GUARDED FLAME

By W. B. MAXWELL ^{Author of} "VIVIEN"

IS A BIG STORY FOR BIG PEOPLE

"Better than his 'Vivien.' . . .
Lifelike, exalted."—London Times.

"The reader who is not wrought to a high pitch of terror and pity may write himself down as insensitive."—London Chronicle.

"The central figure leaves something of the same impression as Col.
Newcome. He is certainly one of the most noble and beautiful and touching creations of modern fiction."—London News.

"It is absorbing and almost horribly fascinating."
—London Tribune.

"A new force in modern fiction.
. . . It is a wonderful story."

—Washington Star.

"A thrill in almost every line."

—Philadelphia North American.

"Oddly strong and moving. The author's ability and grasp are beyond question."

—Chicago Record-Herald.

"Most marvelous is the author's analysis of the feelings of the guilty pair. He has given us a work which for originality and intense keenness in its characters and story will take rank with the best fiction of the year."

—Wilmington (Del.) Every Evening.

RIDOLFO

THE COMING OF THE DAWN

THIS story, by Mr. Egerton R. Williams, Jr., is a splendidly constructed romance of XV century Italy. The ruthless war-lord, Ridolfo of the Baglioni, an angel of darkness in sinister beauty and lack of soul, is redeemed through the love of the beautiful Florentine, Gismonda. The illustrations in color by Mr. J. C. Leyendecker are nothing short of sensational in their power and beauty.

A. C. McCLURG & CO., Publishers, Chicago

“For adventure to make you sit stark, staring awake till cockcrow, for romance to bind you fast in fetters of deepest fascination, for mystery to tantalize, baffle and goad you, read

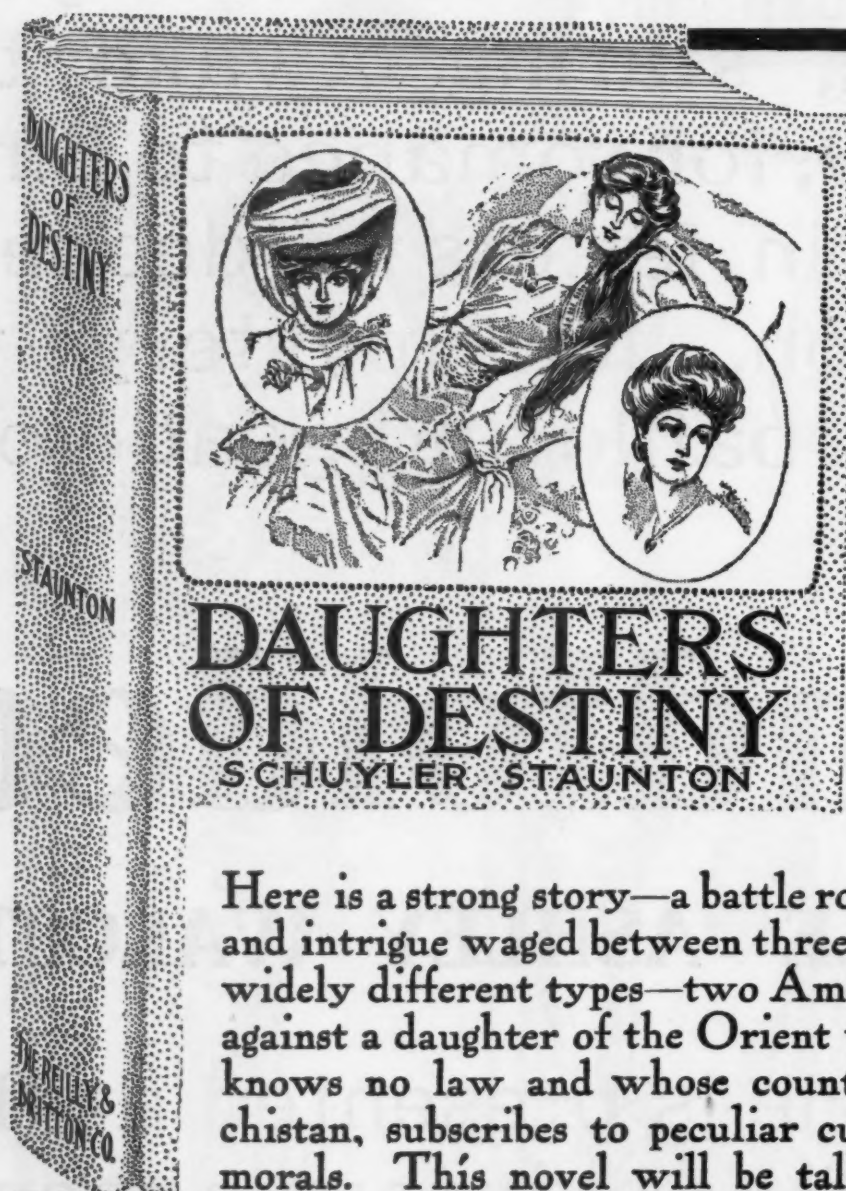

Blindfolded

By EARLE ASHLEY WALCOTT

The puzzle is presented at the jump, and as it unravels seems only to grow all the more complex.

In lure of love, in vigor of events, in mastery of mystery, it would be hard to surpass this story, so unusual and strange.”

—Cleveland Plain-Dealer.

The Chicago Evening Post Says:

THE STORY IS FULL OF ACTION AND COLOR. IT IS A CLEVER PIECE OF FICTION—SHOWING A RARE NARRATIVE SKILL. THE SITUATIONS DIVERGE BROADLY FROM THE CONVENTIONAL. IT IS A BOOK A MAN WILL TELL HIS NEIGHBOR TO READ.

Here is a strong story—a battle royal of love and intrigue waged between three women of widely different types—two American girls against a daughter of the Orient whose love knows no law and whose country, Baluchistan, subscribes to peculiar customs and morals. This novel will be talked about.

Elaborately illustrated in colors; the women by Thomas Mitchell Peirce, the men by Harold Delay.

A Book That is Making Talk

Geronimo's Story of His Life

An "autobiography" of the famous old Apache renegade and outlaw, taken down by S. M. Barrett, Superintendent of Education, Lawton, Oklahoma, by permission of President Roosevelt.

GERONIMO IN HIS WAR PAINT

Fully Illustrated. $1.50 net

DEDICATION TO THEODORE ROOSEVELT

Because he has given me permission to tell my story ; because he has read that story and knows I try to speak the truth ; because I believe that he is fair-minded and will cause my people to receive justice in the future ; and because he is chief of a great people, I dedicate this story of my life to Theodore Roosevelt, President of the United States.

GERONIMO.

REPORT OF WAR DEPARTMENT

"MEMORANDUM FOR THE SECRETARY OF WAR.

"Subject: Manuscript of the Autobiography of Geronimo. The paper herewith, which was referred to this office on July 6th with instructions to report as to whether there is anything objectionable in it, is returned.

"The manuscript is an interesting autobiography of a notable Indian, made by himself. There are a number of passages which, from the departmental point of view, are decidedly objectionable. The entire manuscript appears in a way important as showing the Indian side of a prolonged controversy, but it is believed that the document, either in whole or in part, should not receive the approval of the War Department."

There is a wide general interest in this book, besides a tremendous local interest in certain quarters. Local dealers would do well to take notice.

AUTHOR OF "DOCTOR LUKE," ETC.

NORMAN DUNCAN

Adventures of Billy Topsail

Here is a boys' book that the trade will recommend without reserve. Indeed, every one young or old, who has read Stevenson's "Treasure Island" or "Robinson Crusoe" will find the same charm in this Northern tale, with an individuality all its own. It is a ripping story of adventure by sea, and it moves like a full rigged ship with all sails set to a rousing breeze. The book was published just three weeks ago. A third edition is now in preparation.

AUTHOR OF "WINSOME WOMANHOOD." MARGARET E. SANGSTER

Fairest Girlhood

The advance sale has entirely exhausted the first edition. In order to fill all orders simultaneously we are compelled to print a second edition. This unusual demand is well merited, for "Winsome Womanhood," its predecessor, has long charmed the woman heart. The new book is illustrated by Griselda M. McClure, and in daintiness of manufacture of this gem we yield to none.

AUTHOR OF "MY MAMIE ROSE."

OWEN KILDARE

My Old Bailiwick

These sketches from the Parish of "My Mamie Rose" will receive a hearty welcome from a large clientele that the previous books have established. Kildare is a real Bowery man, surviving the life with sharpened wit and keen intellect; he gives rare brilliance and pathos to this life story.

AUTHOR OF "THE VILLAGE ARTIST."

MARIAN KEITH

The Silver Maple

In Canada's foundation days there lay wonderful stories of sturdy people. Especially in the older portion of Ontario is there rich material for the novelist. Miss Keith draws her material from the counties of Ontario which have given Canada her greatest name. Hers is a forceful, interesting style that binds the reader from first to last.

TO attract attention nowadays a book must immediately arouse interest, and if it can pique the reader's curiosity so much the better.

RANDALL PARRISH has always been able to do this—in every one of his four books. There is always a mystery—something which keeps up the excitement until the last.

HERE are a couple of questions that come up right away in "Bob Hampton."

¶ Why did Bob Hampton refuse to let his ward fall in love with Lieutenant Brant?

¶ Why did he have to live in the underworld, and to be known by an assumed name? Why does he make a living by gambling and a reputation by quickness with a revolver?

¶ And why, in spite of all this, do the reader's sympathy and admiration go to him at once, and stay with him to the end?

¶ Because he is the hero we all like, brave, sure, quiet, well-bred, and because we feel that somehow he must be all right, and his punishment undeserved.

"BOB HAMPTON OF PLACER" is going to have a big sale, and we should like to hear from dealers who want to know the best ways to push it.

NOTABLE BIOGRAPHIES

Personal Reminiscences of Henry Irving By Bram Stoker

It is safe to say that during the coming season no biography will attract or deserve more attention than this. It is by the one man most intimately associated with the great actor in both business life and personal friendship; and so crowded is it with anecdotes and personal touches concerning so many whose names are familiar that to the general reader it must prove one of the most fascinating memoirs ever written.

NOTES IN SEASON.

THE BAKER & TAYLOR COMPANY have just ready "Katrina," a new story by Roy Rolfe Gilson, in which there is more of a plot and a real suspension of interest than in any of his other stories.

THE J. B. LIPPINCOTT COMPANY have just published Rosa N. Carey's story for young women entitled "No Friend Like a Sister," a holiday edition of "The Happy Go-Lucky," translated from the German by Mrs. A. L. Wister; also, "Ver Beck's Book of Bears," one of the funniest books of the year.

DUFFIELD & Co. have brought out this week "Geronimo's Story of his Life," an interesting human document, prepared by the famous Apache chief and outlaw with the permission of President Roosevelt and the War Department, and edited by S. M. Barrett, Superintendent of Schools in Lawton, Oklahoma; also, "Molière: a Biography," by H. C. Chatfield-Taylor, who, supported by French government officials, has had unusual opportunities for preparing the work, which is illustrated by "Job" (the Comte de Bréville.)

DODD, MEAD & Co. have just brought out "Prisoners," by May Cholmondeley, author of "Red Pottage," a love story of strong dramatic power and complications, which in England has already gone into its third issue; "The White Plume," by S. R. Crockett, a tale of love and intrigue in France during the 16th century, opening on the night of St. Bartholomew; "A Warning to Lovers," a re-issue of Paul Leicester Ford's breezy little story in attractive dress, with illustrations in color, by Henry Hutt; "Billy Boy," by John Luther Long, the story of the tender and noble heart of a little boy and of its influence on the father's heart; "The Seventh Person," by Benjamin Brace, author of "Sunrise Acres," who bases his fascinating romance on the requirements that after graduation a college society imposes upon its life members; also, "Emma, Lady Hamilton," from new and original sources and documents, by Walter Sichel, with illustrations, etc.

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS have just ready a work entitled "Camp Fires in the Rockies," an unconventional narrative of an expedition into the well-nigh inaccessible mountains of British Columbia by Dr. William T. Hornaday, with 70 illustrations reproduced from photographs taken by John M. Phillips and two maps; "A Little Book of Bores," by Oliver Herford, in which a bore for each letter of the alphabet is described in a verse and a drawing full of whimsical humor and gay satire; "Truegate of Mogador and Other Cedarton Folk," by Sewell Ford, a collection of stories full of rare and refreshing humor; a re-written and enlarged edition of Thomas Nelson Page's excellent story, "On New Found River," with illustrations in color by E. W. Jackson; the four concluding volumes of the very attractive pocket edition of George Meredith's works—"Lord Ormont and his Aminta," "The Amazing Marriage," "Short Stories," and "Poems;" also, "The Northmen, Columbus and Cabot, 985-1503," edited by Professor Julius E. Olson and Edward G. Bourne, which forms the first volume of a series entitled Original Narratives of Early American History, prepared under the auspices of the American Historical Association under the general editorship, as the representative of the Association, of Dr. J. Franklin Jameson.

A touching little story having for its theme Lincoln's Gettysburg speech. Chance carries Lincoln to the deathbed of a Confederate officer in the Washington prison, who warmly praises the speech that Lincoln in his modesty had called a failure. The young Southerner is ignorant of Lincoln's identity, but is attracted by his personality, and his dying wish is granted him when he puts his hand in Abraham Lincoln's.

John Morton, only six months out of college, hates his father's wholesale grocery business, which he had entered after returning to his New York home. When his grandfather sends for him to come up to the old homestead in Kimberley, New England, hoping he will eventually settle there, John goes willingly. Roberta Oliver is the central figure in the Kimberley life. She is a bright, natural girl, who plays mother to several clever brothers, all her ambition being for them. The incidents are in no way sensational, being such as might happen to any well-bred, healthy group of young people.

Bailey, H. C. Under castle walls. N. Y., D. Appleton, 1906. c. 7+367 p. D. cl., †$1.50.

Lombardy in the days of the land barons, when the powerful rulers of its little jealous kingdoms were reading "Boccaccio" in manuscript, is the scene. Leonardo, a great duke, grown tired of his little kingdom, started out to do some travelling incognito. He met the most famous bandit of the land, Squarcia, and wounded him. Squarcia admired his opponent and made him his lieutenant and drillmaster in the army of the Countess Lucrezia. Great wars, rival heroines, magicians, love potions, treachery, devotion and bravery in good and bad causes make a story full of life and vivid imagination.

Bindloss, Harold. The cattle-baron's daughter. N. Y., Frederick A. Stokes Co., [1906.] c. 5+367 p. D. cl., †$1.50.

Life in the western cattle country in the early '70's, when the "Homesteaders" were beginning to appropriate the government lands so long used as grazing country by the rich cattle raisers. The cattle baron's daughter had tried to be a singer, but after a few years in New York City abandoned the idea and went home to take her part in the great excitement. Neighbors took different sides, and her lifelong chum and companion and her father made her heart and head and her filial duty very hard to view in dutiful and just perspective.

The initial volume in the Raymond Benson series, and the first book of the author, who is the well-known editor of the Kennebec Journal, Augusta, Me., and the son of Ex-Governor Edwin C. Burleigh. His book deals with two active boys in Aroostook County, close to the northeastern boundary of our country, where smuggling across the Canadian line has been prevalent. The boys' chief adventure is with the leading smugglers of the district, in which they render an important public service.

Burrell, Joseph Dunn. A new appraisal of Christian Science. N. Y., Funk & Wagnalls Co., 1906. [S.] c. 75 p. D. cl., 50 c. net.

Brief sketch of the life of Mrs. Eddy and the inception and progress of Christian Science. Analyzes some of its doctrines, pointing out where there has been a divergence from their first interpretation and emphasizing that the claim that the belief is at all scientific is wholly unwarranted. Due credit is given for the cures that have been made, as well as for the failures, of which we hear comparatively little.

Butler, Ellis Parker. Perkins of Portland, Perkins the Great. Bost., Herbert B.

Mrs. McMahan is also the editor of "With Shelley in Italy" and "Florence in the Poetry of the Brownings." In compiling the present volume she has had a wide field to select from, the eight years spent by Byron in Italy being the most prolific in his literary life. His love for the Italian people and their beautiful country and climate is expressed both in his letters and poems of that time. Among the letters are many to his publisher John Murray, to the poet Thomas Moore, to Isaac Disraeli and John Hunt, with extracts from "Childe Harold," "Beppo," "Marino Faliero," "The two Foscari," "Don Juan," etc. The selections are divided into three periods, each preceded by a sketch of Byron's life during the years covered. Index.

Carpenter, Edmund Janes. Long ago in Greece: a book of golden hours with the old story-tellers. Bost., Little, Brown & Co., 1906. [S.] c. 8+306 p. il. D. cl., $1.50.

A book of classic fable and romance, from the ancient story tellers, retold for young people. There are twenty tales in all, beginning with a simplified version of Homer's "Battle of the frogs and mice," followed by the story of Hero and Leander adapted from Musæus, the story of Cupid and Psyche adapted from Apuleius, Ovid's version of Narcissus and his shadow, and many others. The originals are closely adhered to.

Carpenter, E: Childs. Captain Courtesy; 5 il. in col. by Elenore Plaisted Abbott. Phil., George W. Jacobs & Co., [1906. S.] c. 4-299 p. D. cl., †$1.50.

Story of old California in the troublous forties, when the Mexicans by fire and sword were striving to expel all American settlers from the old Spanish province. Captain Courtesy, a gentleman highwayman, bent on revenge for the murder of his parents by the Mexicans, was the scourge of the natives; but both he and several American and Mexican fighters discovered that the two American girls in the half-ruined San Gabriel mission were able to effect strange changes in passions and lives. The closing scene is the battle that proved to be the decisive argument in favor of California's admission into the Union.

Champlain, S: de. The voyages and explorations of Samuel de Champlain, (1604-1616,) narrated by himself; tr. by Annie Nettleton Bourne; together with The voyage of 1603; reprinted from "Purchas his pilgrimes"; ed., with introd. and notes, by E: Gaylord Bourne. Translation of Champlain's own final edition of his works published in 1632. The editor, who is Professor of History in Yale University, has added a biographical introduction and copious footnotes to his wife's translation. "Champlain was the first explorer to make a detailed examination of the coast of New England and Nova Scotia and to prepare a full accurate report of his observations. To him, likewise, we are indebted for our earliest exact accounts of the Indians of New England, eastern Canada and New York." He was the explorer of New France, the founder of Quebec, the discoverer of Lake Champlain.

Doyle, Sir Arthur Conan. Sir Nigel; il. by the Kinneys. N. Y., McClure, Phillips & Co., 1906. c. 8+346 p. D. cl., $1.50.

A story of the fourteenth century, when England had been devastated by the "black death" in its rural sections. Nigel grew up to strong manhood under the stern yet loving eye of his grandmother. The greatest knight of English chivalry, Sir John Chandos, took Nigel as his squire to the French wars. The story is a long succession of battles on sea and land in which Nigel did great deeds for his royal master, Edward III., and the Black Prince. Of course Nigel won the hand of the fairest and sweetest maiden in England.

Doyle, Mrs. Martha Claire, [Martha James.] Jimmie Suter and the boys' pigeon camp; il. by G. W. Picknell. Bost., Lothrop, Lee & Shepard Co., [1906.] c. 246 p. D. (Pigeon camp ser.) cl., $1.25.

First volume of Pigeon camp series, by the author of "My friend Jim." Jimmie Suter is a sturdy, active, honest boy, whose father and mother are very worthy people in moderate circumstances. What Jimmie lacks in pocket money, however, he more than makes up in mechanical ingenuity, and his best boy friend is the son of a rich man. They have royal times making and sailing an ice-boat and doing many other things, and best of all they organize the "S. F. B.," or Society for Feeding Birds, which spreads far and wide and is productive of most enjoyable acquaintances besides doing good service in the cause for which it was organized.

Dudley, Albertus True. With mask and mitt; il. by C. Copeland. Bost., Lothrop, Lee & Shepard Co., [1906.] c. 13+300 p. D. (Phillips-Exeter ser.) cl., $1.25.

Follows "In the line" in the Phillips-Exeter series. While as full of incidents as the previous books, it covers wholly new ground in athletics. The story continues the subject of baseball, though it is very much more than merely a baseball story. The incidents of school life and the character and development of the boys are well delineated.

Duer, Elizabeth. The prince goes fishing. N. Y., Appleton, 1906. c. 5+299 p. il. D. cl., $1.50.

A young prince and princess of two reigning houses of Germany some time before the Franco-Prussian war are ordered to marry. They know nothing of each other, both rebelling at the command. The Crown Prince of Palatina resorts to a clever masquerade to make the acquaintance of his intended bride, wins her heart as a simple lieutenant, and loses his own in return. The story is written in a humorous vein, and offers amusing characterization of the high and mighty potentates of the little, imaginary kingdoms that form the background.

Dye, Mrs. Eva Emery. McDonald of Oregon: a tale of two shores; il. by Walter J. Enright. Chic., A. C. McClurg & Co., 1906. [S.] c. 395 p. D. cl., $1.50.

Biography cast in the form of a story of Randal McDonald, born in Oregon in 1824 of a Scotch father and an Indian mother. It was at the request of McDonald himself that Mrs. Dye has written this story of his life, based on personal statements and letters of McDonald and other Hudson Bay men, on rare historical documents and government reports. The period covers the last years of the Hudson Bay Company in Oregon and the entrance of American dominion. When only twenty-one McDonald went to Japan, where he established a school, and they were his pupils who acted as interpreters during the negotiations with Commodore Perry some time later. McDonald died at Fort Colville, Wash., on August 24, 1894, after years of wandering over the world, the last of the great pioneers of the West.

Edgar, Madalen G. Stories from Scottish history; [based upon Scott's "Tales of a grandfather,"] by Madalen G. Edgar. N. Y., Thomas Y. Crowell & Co., [1906.] c. 17+331 p. col. front. il. S. (Children's favorite classics.) cl., 60 c.

A selection from Sir Walter Scott's "Tales of a grandfather;" the stories are taken from the first series, and all lie between the rise of William Wallace and the union of the crowns.

Eichendorff, Joseph Karl Benedikt, Freiherr v. The happy-go-lucky; or, leaves from the life of a good for nothing; tr. from the German by Mrs. Annis Lee Furness Wister; with il. in col. and tint by Philipp Grot Johann and Professor Edmund Kainoldt, and marginal drawings by Eva Nagel Wolf. Phil., Lippincott, 1906. c. 6-115 p. O. cl., $2.

New illustrated edition of a well-known German novel. First published in Phila., in 1866, by Frederick Leypoldt, in Charles Godfrey Leland's translation, under the title "Memoirs of a good-for-nothing." The present translation by Mrs. Wister was first published by the Lippincotts in 1888 as "Leaves from the life of a good-for-nothing."

Editor is assistant master in modern languages at St. Paul's School, Concord, N. H. The first of the works of Paul Féval to appear in an annotated edition. The original version has been considerably curtailed, but all of it essential to the formation of a consistent whole has been retained. The introduction gives a brief account of the life of Paul Féval, of Mont Saint-Michel, that grand relic of mediaevalism around which the chief interest centres, and of the historical events to which allusion is made in the text. The book is intended for students who have completed one year's work in French.

Fisher, Irving. The nature of capital and income. N. Y., Macmillan 1906. c. 427 p. diags. O. $3 net.

Author is professor of political economy in Yale University. He hopes to supply a link missing between the ideas and usages underlying practical business transactions and the theories of abstract economics. Income forms the central theme of the book. "It is income for which capital exists; it is income for which labor is exerted, and it is the distribution of income which constitutes the disparity between the rich and the poor." The subject appeals to practical men of affairs and to those interested in social reforms as well as to theoretical economists.

Ford, Ja. Lauren. The wooing of Folly. N. Y., Appleton, 1906. c. 3+294 p. D. cl., †$1.50.

The author of "The Literary Shop" tells the story of a family from South Boston who come to New York to attack society. The father has made an immense fortune in Nevada in silver, and spends it lavishly in pursuit of his one absorbing purpose. There is a daughter, Folly, who is the object of innumerable fortune hunters, and a son, Byron, fresh from Dartmouth College, whom it takes but a very short time to learn all the ways of the fast set of the metropolis. The story is told in letters, all the characters confiding their innermost secrets to correspondents.

Ford, Sewell. Shorty McCabe; il. by Francis Vaux Wilson. N. Y., Mitchell Kennerley, [1906.] c. 5-316 p. D. cl., $1.50.

The author of "Horses nine" lets Shorty McCabe, a professor of physical culture in New York City, tell his own story. He is patronized by the richest society people of the city, and their peculiar adventures make up the book. For a little while Shorty travels in Italy with a patron who takes lessons in pugilism, and his criticism of foreign ways ends in his verdict: "What I need is a life sentence to stay in little old New York."

Forrest, J. R. Retribution: [a novel.] N. Y., J. S. Ogilvie Publishing Co., 1906. [O10.] 250 p. il. 12°, cl., $1.

Fowler, Ellen Thorneycroft, [Mrs. Alfred Laurence Felkin.] The subjection of Isabel Carnaby. N. Y., Dodd, Mead & Co., 1906. [S.] c. 8+357 p. col. front. D. cl., †$1.50.

With the same wealth of epigram that distinguished "Concerning Isabel Carnaby" the author portrays the married life of her brilliant heroine and her loving subjection to her noted husband, Paul Seaton. A secondary interest in the novel is a young Anglo-Indian girl, who comes to London to visit Mrs. Seaton, and who retains many of the heathen traits of her Hindoo ancestors. Her love affairs are novel in the extreme. Her marriage to a man she does not love, and the way he finally wins her love, is new even in fiction. Two men who are exact counterparts of each other, and yet strangers, lend mystery to the plot.

Franklin, W: Suddards, and Esty, W: The elements of electrical engineering: a textbook for technical schools and colleges. v. 1, Direct current machines, electric distribution and lighting. N. Y., Macmillan, 1906. c. 13+517 p. 8°, cl., *$4.50 net.

French, Allen. Pelham and his friend Tim; il. by Ch. Grunwald. Bost., Little, Brown & Co., 1906. [S.] c. 8+391 p. D. cl., †$1.50.

The author of "The junior cup" and other books for boys makes a mill strike the centre of his plot. The owner of the mill, his sons and employees, take part in the various scenes of play and adventure. Pelham is the son of Dr. Dodd, the mill owner; Tim a poor boy who is cruelly treated by his reputed father.

The boys have been friends from childhood, and stand by each other through an unusual experience. Tim finds his real father and is made happy.

Frenssen, Gustav. Holyland; exclusive authorized tr. of Hilligenlei; tr. from the German, by Mary Agnes Hamilton. Bost., Dana Estes & Co., 1906. [S5.] c. 7-375 p. D. cl., $1.50.

The life, love, suffering, ideals and disappointments of the humble seafaring folk who live on the borders of the German Ocean between Denmark and Hamburg are described with the same realism and detail that made "Jörn Uhl" a masterpiece. Kai Jans, the hero, starts to be a preacher, but cannot reconcile the doctrines of the church with what he feels is true religion. He makes several long sea voyages, most vividly pictured. Disappointed love for a girl who has been a great spiritual help to him breaks him down, and during his illness many things are made clear to his troubled mind. He writes a life of Christ as a man, and formulates a religion of love that may make every place a "Holy Land."

Gibson, Charlotte Chaffee. In Eastern wonderlands; il. from photographs. Bost., Little, Brown & Co., 1906. [S.] c. 8+197 p. D. cl., $1.50.

Describes a real journey taken by the children with their father, first to Honolulu, then to Japan, where they visit Tokio, Nikko and Kiota; China comes next, then Ceylon and India, the land of enchantment, and Egypt. In all these places the wonders that have made them celebrated the world over are visited and thoroughly enjoyed. The book is as instructive for young people as it is enjoyable.

Gibson, T. The pitfalls of speculation. N. Y., Moody Corporation, 1906. c. 159 p. D. cl., $1.

His wide experience with the machinery of the exchanges and the technicalities of the market lend authority to the author's explanations of the failure of eighty per cent. of the speculators and his reasons for the success of the remaining twenty per cent. He lays down thirteen basic principles as applicable to the direction of speculative or marginal accounts, and supports each statement with ample precedent. He follows this with a summary of the analysis of 500 speculative accounts in stocks and an equal number in grain. He specially points out that speculation must be learned, and that not one speculator in 100 enters the business equipped for his work.

Hill, Marion. The Pettison twins; il. by F. Y. Cory. N. Y., McClure, Phillips & Co., 1906. [S.] c. 4+263 p. D. cl., $1.50.

The story of a little twin boy and girl who are trained at home in a thoroughly systematic manner. With watch in hand their mother directs their eating, sleeping and playing with monotonous regularity, until life becomes a burden to them, and they try being naughty just for variety. Their encounter with the trained nurse and the kindergarten teacher and their precocious way of talking affords much amusement.

Romance founded on the bitter hatred existing at the time of Christ between the Romans and the conquered Jews. The hero is a centurion of the guards, loyal to Pilate though disapproving of his methods. This Cestus is loved by two women, one a typical woman of Rome, sensuous and unscrupulous, the other a Jewish maiden, pure and true to her religion. The turbulent life of the city is depicted, in the streets, in the High Priest's house and in Pilate's palace, and the Messiah is introduced, not as a character, but as a compelling and restraining influence.

Jepson, Edgar. Tinker Two: further adventures of the Admirable Tinker. N. Y., McClure, Phillips & Co., 1906. c. 3+320 p. D. cl., $1.50.

A sequel to the "Admirable Tinker" and "Lady Noggs, Peeress." Elsie, the adopted sister of Tinker, was left deserted by her uncle outside the Casino at Monte Carlo. The uncle turns up in the new story with a rascally associate and plans to capture Elsie and use her as a means of exacting money from her protectors. Tinker spirits Elsie into Central Europe and they spend much time in the German forest, where they have marvellous adventures. Among these is the entertainment of three emperors who lose their way and discuss the politics of all other potentates of earth in amusing fashion. The plot is too complex for concise telling, but decidedly clever.

The author has written other works on the trees and flowers: "A guide to the trees," "A guide to the wild flowers," etc. The little girl who tells this story goes from the city to live in the country with her grandmother. There through the spring, summer and autumn she roams through woods, meadows and swamps and sees many things that pique her curiosity. It is the wild flowers she mostly wishes to know about, but she notices the birds and insects, the trees, the changes in nature, etc. The little girl writes about these things in her own way, using neither botanical terms nor difficult words. The flowers she finds are the ones common through the northeastern states.

The author of "A wanderer in Holland" and "The open road," by means of letters purporting to come from about a dozen different characters, tells the love story of a young girl who is the graceful listener and has much confided to her. After helping her guardian edit a new edition of Boswell's "Johnson," she finds a place as secretary to a rich woman devoted to charities and altruistic plans of all kinds. Here she meets many people of many idiosyncrasies and many fads. The literary element prevails in the guardian's letters and humor pervades those of nearly every character in the little London comedy.

By the author of "Bruvver Jim's baby." Although "Dunny," a quaint, lovable little boy, occupies the prominent place in the story, it is a love story with a pretty heroine—his sister Sylvia. Dunny and Sylvia after their father's death accept Jerry Kirke's invitation to make their home with him in a rough, western lumber camp. On their way from the East they meet a handsome young fellow going to the same part of the country they are bound for, and a deep friendship grows up between him and Sylvia. The story relates to this love, and Jerry Kirke's desire to make Sylvia his wife and her gratitude to him, her father's friend. The humorous side of life in this typical community is appreciatively set forth.

Mr. Morris is author of "What will Japan do?" "Advance Japan!" "Japan and its trade," etc. He is a member of the Japan Society. His object in the preparation of the present work has been to convey a general impression of Japan and her people and of the workings of reform as exemplified in the lives of some of her patriots. There are twenty-two chapters containing as many biographical essays, accompanied by portraits, being a carefully worked out series of character studies of famous Japanese statesmen and soldiers. The chapter devoted to the Mikado is especially interesting, as he has always been for most of us a figure of considerable mystery. The essays include many well-known names, such as Marquis Ito, Count Shojiro, Field Marshal Yamagata, Field Marshal Oyama, Admiral Togo, and others equally prominent.

Comprises the last ten chapters of the author's revised "Mediaeval and modern history." It affords a rapid survey of events from the Congress of Vienna in 1815 to the Peace of Portsmouth and the elections to the Russian Duma. The outworking of the democratic ideas of the French Revolution is made the dominant interest of the period. The author sees and makes plain the fundamental fact of a continuity and progress in history like that in geology, a slow but sure advance from lower to higher social, moral and political ideals and forms.

"Don-a-Dreams" is an imaginative, impractical young Canadian who comes to New York after one year in college to seek his fortune. Since his earliest boyhood he has adored "Miss Margaret," the girl of his sleeping and waking dreams, and has promised himself some day to win her. His pitiable struggles for livelihood in New York leave him still the idealist and the evils of bohemian life do not bring to him contamination. And at last, as a successful dramatist, he is able to realize all of his happiest dreams. The author will be remembered for his collection of stories of New York firemen entitled "The smoke eaters."

Paine, Ralph Delahaye. The story of Martin Coe; il. by Howard Giles. N. Y., Outing Publishing Co., 1906. c. 4+404 p. col. front. D. cl., $1.50.

The story of a gunner's mate who deserted from an American cruiser to command the filibustering expeditions of a South American revolutionary party. He is wrecked in tropical waters and picked up by a Portland-bound schooner. The scene shifts to an old-fashioned village on the Kennebec, where Martin Coe, sailor and adventurer, falls in love with the solitary pupil of the Select Boarding School. The new influences which surround him lead him to atone for his desertion of his flag by returning to the navy to take his punishment, leaving the girl he loves to await his return to her with his honor untarnished.

Peake, Elmore Elliott. The little king of Angel's Landing. N. Y., Appleton, 1906. c. 5+228 p. il. D. cl., †$1.25.

Nine years before the story opens a steamboat explosion had taken place on the Ohio River near the town of Angel's Landing. A tiny baby boy, frightfully maimed, was blown ashore, where he was found by a kind-hearted farmer, who carried him to his home and nursed him back into life. Every effort having been made to find the boy's parents but in vain, the farmer adopted him as his own, calling him "Abe." Abe, although an almost helpless cripple, is a plucky, persevering little fellow, a leader among his boy friends. His short career is rich in lessons and most touching. He in the end comes into his own.

Mr. Leland's gifts and accomplishments were so varied, his life so broad, his acquaintance with famous men so extensive, that his biography has the charm of fiction. He will be remembered as the author of the "Hans Breitmann's Ballads," the translator of Heine's "Pictures of travel" and "Book of songs," author of a series of valuable Art work manuals and of innumerable other works and contributions to magazines and periodicals. He was a lieutenant in the Northern army during our Civil War and later was editor of the Philadelphia Press. He spent many years studying the language and customs of the gypsies and Indians, being considered, after Borrow, the greatest authority on Romany life and folk-lore. He left all his papers, letters and manuscripts in the hands of his niece, Mrs. Pennell, wife of Joseph Pennell, the well-known artist and author. The work is profusely illustrated with photogravure frontispiece, portraits, autograph facsimiles, etc. Bibliography (2 p.).

Story of the Far East, presenting the contrasted characters of two brothers, one a sincere and pious Muslim, the other an ambitious, nominally orthodox man, who bends the injunctions of the Koran into accord with his own worldly progress. The first becomes sheik in a small town, while his ambitious brother obtains a government position. The passions of love and hate enter into their lives, working out to a dramatic climax. By the author of "Said the fisherman."

Pier, Arthur Stanwood. Harding of St. Timothy's. Bost., Houghton, Mifflin & Co., 1906. [S.] c. 4+235 p. il. D. cl., †$1.50.

First published in The Youth's Companion under the title "Harry Harding's last year." By the author of "Boys of St. Timothy's" and of several novels. A story of a preparatory school for boys, suggesting St. Paul's or Groton in its atmosphere. It is in sympathy with the present movement against the prominence of athletics and of secret societies in schools and colleges.

Ray, Anna Chapin. Janet: her winter in Quebec; with il. from drawings by Alice Barber Stephens. Bost., Little, Brown & Co., 1906. c. 4+370 p. D. cl., †$1.50.

By the author of the "Teddy" books. The second volume in the "Sidney" series introduces a New York family spending the winter in Quebec. The young people of the family are Day Argyle, full of fun and frolic, and her brother Rob, an Exeter student, who has been invalided in a football match. They board with the Leslie family and become very intimate with Sidney Stayre and Ronald Leslie and his sister Janet. The fun is unceasing throughout the story. A young Englishman unconsciously furnishes a great deal of it.

Rhoades, Nina. Polly's predicament: a story; il. by C: Copeland. Bost., W. A. Wilde Co., [1906.] c. 341 p. D. cl., †$1.50.

Story for older girls, introducing many of the characters already met in Miss Rhoades' books. Polly Allen, a bright-faced, natural girl of eighteen, is invited to go to Europe as the guest of a superficial but attractive married woman. While in Carlsbad they involuntarily play a part in the family affairs of an English woman and her granddaughter, and make a promise of silence that after her return to Vermont brings Polly many heartaches. But at last the promise is broken under most surprising circumstances and Polly's life opens out very happily.

"Whereas people have been accustomed to speak of the imagination as an entity sui generis, as a lofty something found only in long-haired, wild-eyed 'geniuses,' constituting indeed the centre of a cult, our author, Prometheus-like, has brought it down from the heavens, and has clearly shown that imagination is a function of mind common to all men in some degree, and that it is shown in as highly developed a form in commercial leaders and practical inventors as in the most bizarre of romantic idealists."—Translator's Preface. The only difference is the difference of manifestation.

A young advocate of London, of most pronounced and original opinions, is on the edge of starvation one cold winter's night when he is sought by a great solicitor, who wishes him to try a case of murder. The murderess is an outcast and her crime is proved, but the starving advocate agrees to bring a jury round to acquit her. The story is given up to the trial and the many thoughts on modern law dispensation which it brings up. The author of "Broke of Covenand" again proves himself an original and fearless thinker and experienced student of human nature.

Stanley, Mrs. Caroline Abbot. A modern Madonna. N. Y., Century Co., 1906. c. 8+401 p. D. cl., $1.50.

The scene is Washington, D. C. Until ten years ago there existed a law in the Maryland statute law taken over with the land taken for the seat of the national government, which gave a father the right to will away "the custody and tuition" of an unborn child. An unhappily married woman becomes a widow when her husband is mysteriously murdered, and when her baby is born she finds the father has willed it to his brother. The story tells of her great mother love and her life-long efforts to bring about the repeal of the cruel law. The child has been a great influence in his uncle's life and in the end the modern Madonna reaps the benefit of the uncle's devotion to them both.

Stevenson, Burton Egbert. Affairs of state: being an account of certain surprising adventures which befell an American family in the land of windmills; with il. by F. Vaux Wilson. N. Y., H: Holt & Co., 1906. [S.] c. 7+335 p. D. cl., $1.50.

The author of "The Marathon mystery" has again invented a complicated plot for a story of which the scene is a summering place in Holland. A rich American financier travelling with his two daughters is bored to death at the little Dutch resort. The girls plead to stay, and to pass the time, the father, unknown to his girls, backs the impecunious landlord and instructs him in hotel-management. Noblemen of England and Germany come to the hotel, Cupid gets in his little darts and the little deceptions practiced by all get things into quite a snarl. The American father speaks plain English to the English Viscount and German Prince, and in a last act of explanations all ends merrily.

Stuart, C: Duff. Casa Grande: a California pastoral. N. Y., H: Holt & Co., 1906. [S.] c. 5+367 p. D. cl., $1.50.

A story of the early 50's when there were all the complications in California of grants of land by Mexico and squatter rights under the United States government. Relates the experiences of a young Southern gentleman, whose ranch house was called the Casa Grande, while making good his claims to a Mexican grant. The heroine was one of the "squatters," who fought like a man for the home she, her mother and two brothers had toiled for during eight years. From a mannish cow-girl she becomes a gentle, lovable woman under the teachings of Cupid and the example of a doctor's wife, and love settles the vexed questions of land claims.

The object of this book is to acquaint the general reader with the remarkable discoveries of modern physiological science of the specific relations of certain areas on the surface of the brain to special mental functions. One of the first results of these discoveries is to impart an entirely new aspect to the important subject of education. Dr. Thomson also points out the direct bearing of these now scientifically demonstrated facts upon the great question, whether the brain is the source of thought or instead the instrument of the thinker, just as the hand is. It has been the aim of the author to steer clear of technical terms as far as possible and also of all metaphysical discussions. Mr. Thomson is physician to Roosevelt Hospital, New York, and an authority on brain and nervous diseases.

Thorne, Guy, [pseud. for Ranger Gull; also uses pseud. Filson Young.] Made in His image. Phil., George W. Jacobs & Co., [1906. S.] c. 3-432 p. D. cl., $1.50.

Supposed to be written a number of years hence, when the number and condition of the unemployed in London have become a fearful peril to England's very life. Charles Bosanquet, an atheist, Minister of Industrial Affairs, formulates a plan by which "England shall be free from the terrible incubus of the incurably idle, drunken, criminal and vicious classes," whom he styles the Unemployable. This is no less than slavery for life in a great penal colony in Cornwall. The scheme is carried into effect by means of the labor vote in Parliament, though bitterly opposed by the religious element in England. Its working out during two years is described, with the inevitable outcome of any plan that classes human beings, however degraded, as animals without souls. A love story lends a slight thread of romance to this sociological experiment. By the author of "When it was dark" and "A lost cause."

The historic Jumel mansion, which may yet be seen at Washington Heights, New York, forms the background to a story of Colonial times. The central figure is the famous Madame Betty Jumel, a heartless coquette and somewhat of an adventuress. Aaron Burr, whom she married later, was her ardent admirer. But her fancy at this time had flown to a younger man, one of the Trumbulls of New York, who was in love with a charming young girl. Madame Betty resorted to daring intrigue to capture him, casting Burr aside. Her better nature came to her aid in the end, and she helped the young lovers, giving up her own design.

Second volume in the series, the first, "The coming of the white man," having dealt with discoveries and early settlements, while this volume brings the history of our country about to the Revolution. Uncle Sam is represented as telling these fourteen stories to children. Adapted to lower grade classroom work.

Wagner, Wilhelm R: Tannhäuser: a dramatic poem by Richard Wagner freely tr. in poetic narrative form by Oliver Huckel. N. Y., Thomas Y. Crowell & Co., [1906. S.] c. 69 p. front. D. cl., $75 c. net; limp leath., $1.50 net.

The third of Mr. Huckel's versions of the Wagner music-dramas. It is in the same dignified, smooth-flowing, blank-verse form as the translations of "Parsifal" and "Lohengrin." Printed in black and red from special type designs by the Merrymount Press.

Walker, Alice Morehouse. Historic Hadley: a story of the making of a famous Massachusetts town. N. Y., The Grafton Press, [1906.] c. 12+130 p. D. (The Grafton historical ser., ed. by H. R. Stiles.) cl., $1 net.

By the author of "Historic homes of Amherst" and other sketches of local history. Here she gives a history of the origin, growth and development of a typical New England town upon the Connecticut River, settled two hundred and fifty years ago. In the author's endeavor to impart to her narrative the fascination of a story, truth has not been sacrificed to style. Painstaking effort has been made to search the town records, to scrutinize every historical document, and to weigh carefully familiar tradition.

Ward, Lester Frank. Applied sociology: a treatise on the conscious improvement of society by society. Bost., Ginn, [1906.] c. 18+384 p. O. cl., $2.50.

Purposes to point out how the obstacles to human progress may be overcome by the application of the principles of social science. Maintains that the agents of history are men, that human progress is due to the actions of members of society, that civilization is the product of human achievement. The problem is how to increase the number and efficiency of these agents of civilization. Author thinks the removal of unfavorable conditions would greatly increase the quality of these agents. Author is professor of sociology in Brown University.

Ward, Lester Frank. The psychic factors of civilization. 2d ed. Bost., Ginn, [1906.] c. 23+369 p. O. cl., $2.50.

Warman, E: Barrett. Tensing exercises. N. Y., American Sports Publishing Co., [1906.] c. 92 p. il. 16°, (Spalding's athletic lib.) pap., 10 c.

Waugh, Frank Albert. Dwarf fruit trees: their propagation, pruning, and general management; adapted to the United States and Canada. N. Y., Orange Judd Co., 1906. c. 12+125 p. il. 12°, cl., 50 c.

What is man? N. Y., De Vinne Press, [priv. print.,] 1906. 3-140 p. 8°. Ed. limited.

Whiteing, R: Ring in the new. N. Y., Century Co., 1906. [O.] c. 4+347 p. D. cl., $1.50.

Another story of "the other half" in London by the author of "No. 1 John Street." A young girl, orphaned, penniless and without any training in business, or particular skill in any line of work, is forced to earn her living. Her experiences are pathetic and evidently taken from the real life of a working girl.

Whittier, J: Greenleaf. Snow-bound: a winter idyl; with 20 il.; drawings by Howard Pyle, J: J. Enneking and Edmund Garrett; decorations by Adrian J. Iorio. Bost., Houghton, Mifflin & Co., 1906. c. 4-96 p. col. front. sq. O. cl., boxed, $2.50.

A new illustrated edition of this classic. Printed from new plates, on rich, heavy paper, each page having a head and tail piece in tint designed by Adrian J. Iorio, a frontispiece in colors, and drawings in tint by the well-known artists named above.

Williams, Egerton R., jr. Ridolfo, the coming of the dawn: a tale of the Renaissance; with il. in col. by Jos. C. Leyendecker. Chic., A. C. McClurg & Co., 1906. c. 3+406 p. O. cl., $1.50.

Scenes laid in Perugia, Italy, where the family of Baglioni were despots from 1390 to 1535. The character of Ridolfo de' Baglioni is based on one of this family who ruled in the sixteenth century, though this story is timed to the century earlier. Ridolfo is a ferocious war-lord, without pity or remorse, and the story traces his gradual redemption through the influence of his gentle, lovely young wife. Plots, torture and murder work toward the dramatic climax. By the author of "Hill towns of Italy."

Willow, Suworra Oscar. The rapid progress writing system; or, the secret of combining legibility with speed in longhand and type-writing. Sunbury, Pa., [Suworra Oscar Willow,] [1906.] c. 74 p. tab., 16°, cl., 75 c.

Wilson, Calvin Dill. Old tales retold for young readers: Canterbury tales, prologue and selections rewritten in simple language, by Calvin Dill Wilson; decorated by Ralph Fletcher Seymour. Chic., A. C. McClurg & Co., 1906. c. [O.] 5-176 p. S. cl., *$1 net.

The prologue from Chaucer's "Canterbury tales," with selections from "The tale of the knight," "The tale of the man-of-law" and "The tale of the clerk of Oxford" retold by the author of "The story of the Cid," "The child's Don Quixote," etc.

Woodruff, Anne Helena. The pond in the marshy meadow. Akron, O., Saalfield Publishing Co., [1906.] c. 186 p. col. front. il. O. cl., $1.50.

The pond in the meadow is a little kingdom in itself. It has a king in the person of a garrulous old snapping turtle, who rules its queer collection of inhabitants as well as all the life of the locality. There are a little girl and boy who visit the pond daily and learn from the snapping turtle a great deal about its marvellous wonders. The story is in a measure allegorical, and is interspersed throughout with gay little verses and songs.

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

OCTOBER 6, 1906.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

All matter for advertising pages should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

Publishers are requested to furnish title page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, as it is of the utmost importance that the entries of books be made as promptly and as perfectly as possible. In many cases booksellers and librarians depend on the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY solely for their information. The Record of New Publications of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY is the material of the "American Catalog," and so forms the basis of trade bibliography in the United States.

"I hold every man a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help and an ornament thereunto."—LORD BACON.

POSTAL COMMISSION HEARINGS.

THE Postal Commission hearings, reported elsewhere, represented the patient and careful attention of six members of Congress, who knew little or nothing of the business of publishing, to the position of the Post-Office Department as stated by department and local officials and to the position of publishers as stated by representatives of the many associations of periodical publishers. The Commission had invited briefs, and this resulted in great repetition of the same arguments and in much waste of time. The method adopted toward amending the postal law was in striking contrast, as to effectiveness, with the copyright conferences held in this city and in Washington for the amendment of the copyright law. The copyright conference was so handled that there was no repetition of facts and arguments, but each point was presented and discussed by those specifically cognizant of the matter, and where there was general agreement there was no waste of time in repetition. It was evident that the adoption of the original suggestion of Postmaster-General Cortelyou for a commission composed of members of Congress, postal officials and representative periodical publishers would have been much more effective and useful.

This was particularly evident on the afternoon during which the testimony of Mr. Root, of The Dry Goods Economist, "the oldest trade journal in the world," was interrupted by a series of calculations by a member of the Commission, evidently intended to emphasize a scheme for rating the reading matter of a periodical at one cent per pound postage and the advertisements at a higher rate of 7 cents per pound. The Congressman figured, from the unusual numbers of the periodicals which happened to be before him, that the advertising receipts of The Dry Goods Economist or of The Iron Age would exceed $350,000 per year, and then began to reckon the amount of postage paid to the Government for each page of advertising. This calculation produced some extraordinary contrasts, until it was mildly suggested by a publisher that the Congressman was figuring on a circulation of one copy, and that his figures needed to be multiplied by the several thousand circulation. This produced a ripple of merriment among those cognizant with the publishing business, which represented the attitude of the publishers to their would-be teachers. To attempt a distinction between reading matter and advertising would necessitate an examination of each copy of each periodical before postage could be determined—the most futile and impossible scheme yet suggested. Such episodes as this made the publishers present rather hopeless as to any useful outcome from the Commission's work.

The chairman announced at the outset that the Commission would not consider the cost of transportation of the mails, as that was outside its jurisdiction; yet most of the discussion showed that accurate figures as to cost and careful economy in transportation made the crux of the whole question. It was pointed out by the present writer in a postal article in the American Monthly Review of Reviews for March, 1905, that reducing the figures to the transportation unit of the ton-mile, the Government pays the railroads from a maximum of \$1.17 down a sliding scale to 18.7 cents with a minimum of 5.8 cents on the largest amounts for mail transportation, while the express companies charge 7 cents to private patrons, paying, it is understood, one half or 3.5 cents to the railroads, and the freight rate to private shippers range from 2 down to .7 cents, passenger rates ranging from 16 cents down to 4 cents per ton-mile of passenger and baggage. It is difficult to obtain the average rate paid by the Government to the railroads, but one calculation makes it somewhat above 18 cents per ton-mile or five fold the price paid by the express companies. A calculation made by another participant in the hearings showed that the price paid by the Government for mail transportation on the New York to Chicago route over the New York Central, close upon a thousand miles, is \$3.37 per hundred pounds, while the express rates are \$2.50, and the freight rates from 75 cents down over the same route. These figures show that on the most wholesale postal route in the country, so to speak, the Government pays $6\frac{3}{4}$ cents per ton-mile for mail transportation, while the express charges are but 5 cents per ton-mile—of which $2\frac{1}{2}$ cents, it is understood, is the payment to the railroads—and freight charges range from $1\frac{1}{2}$ cents down. If these figures are true a simple amendment to the postal appropriation bill to the effect that the Government should not pay the railroads more than do private carriers for the like service, would more than make good the total postal deficiency or any possible loss from second-class rates—and the only thing left in postal reform would be to stop the tyrannical pettifoggery now traditional in the Post-Office Department in its treatment of periodicals.

The periodical press of the country ought to hammer away at this question of cost until the truth is fully known to the people and reaches Washington, and the dealing of the Government with the railroads is put on a fair business basis.

One of the most effective arguments used at the conference was the enormous business of "profitable" kind which the Government obtains as the result of the "unprofitable" carrying of second-class matter. If the postal business were that of a private concern which was promoting its business through advertising, it would be recognized that the advertising columns of the periodical press are among the largest feeders of the postal business because of the number of letters each advertisement produces, and that the Government gets thus an enormous amount of free development out of the paying part of its business; but it is impossible at this writing to follow the many arguments presented in this connection. It is to be hoped, against hope, that something profitable may come of the work of the Commission, whose members are certainly to be thanked for the courteous and painstaking consideration given to a matter as to which their unfamiliarity with the details of the business chiefly involved, makes such consideration doubly difficult.

THE POSTAL INQUIRY.

THE Postal Commission appointed by Congress at its last session to inquire into the abuses of the postal regulations regarding second-class mail matter, held its sittings this week in the Gilt Room of the Holland House, in New York City, beginning at ten o'clock in the morning of the 2d inst., and continuing each day until after five in the afternoon, with an intermission for luncheon. The Commission consists of Senators Boies Penrose of Pennsylvania, Thomas H. Carter of Montana, and Alexander S. Clay of Georgia, and Representatives Jesse Overstreet of Indiana, John J. Gardner of New Jersey, and John A. Moon of Tennessee. Senator Penrose acted as chairman, Representative Overstreet as vice-chairman, and Henry H. Glassie as secretary. A very representative body of newspaper publishers and editors filled the room. Among the government representatives present were E. C. Madden, Third Assistant Postmaster-General, whose department has special charge of second-class mail matter; W. S. Schallenger, Second Assistant Postmaster-General; Edward M. Morgan, Assistant Postmaster at New York City, and John M. Hubbard, Assistant Postmaster at Chicago.

The chairman, in opening the hearings, stated that it was not the business of the Commission to discuss the cost of carrying the mail, and excluded discussion on that point. Nevertheless, most of the discussion turned upon cost, on which the only figures available for the government side seemed to be the general statement in Postmaster-General Charles Emory Smith's time that second-class matter cost five cents for carriage and two cents for distribution—a total of seven cents a pound.

The first day was given chiefly to a consideration of an address by Mr. Madden on "The Operation of the Existing Second-Class Statutes and Difficulties in the Way of their Administration." Mr. Madden went over the familiar arguments of the Post-Office Department, saying, among other things, that "there was a deficit in the postal receipts for the last fiscal year of more than $14,000,000, and that most of this is directly chargeable to publications that have unlawfully taken advantage of the one cent a pound rate on second-class matter. The requirements of admission to this class are so loose," Mr. Madden declared, "that the low rate practically amounts to a government subsidy on this class of matter. The government gets but one cent a pound for it, and the cost of handling it, exclusive of railroad transportation, amounts to three cents a pound. The law doesn't define what a newspaper is, for one thing, and many pamphlets designed purely for advertising purposes slip in as newspapers for want of a narrower classification. Personally I should like to see the character of the publication removed from the field. Make any printed matter of a certain size second-class stuff. If necessary raise the rate, and let it go at that."

In conclusion Mr. Madden advocated a simple system of rates at four cents a pound for periodicals and merchandise, including the present first, second, third and fourth-class matter.

Assistant Postmaster-General John M. Hubbard of Chicago presented three recommendations for the changing of the second-class matter law which, condensed, are that second-class matter be placed on a self-sustaining basis; that bulk mail, or mail for news agents and dealers, be sent outside the mails, or, either of the former plans proving unavailable, that the rate of postage be increased and existing conditions modified. The recommendations were each supported by numerous reasons, and a rate of two cents a pound for bulk newspapers, and three cents a pound for individual copies was suggested.

Assistant Postmaster Edward M. Morgan read a paper embodying his own views and those of Postmaster Willcox of New York, which gave a synopsis of the changes in the law wished by the department. "The law," Mr. Morgan thought, "should be revised to permit a simple classification of periodical publications and what may be mailed with such publications, as supplements, sections and the like. Publications got out for the financial benefit of the publishers should pay a rate sufficient to cover the cost of conveying them, which the present rate emphatically does not. The raised rate should be applied to all periodicals which carry advertising. Publications relating to movements considering a public benefit should get the present cent a pound rate."

The many associations of periodicals throughout the country were represented by committees or individual spokesmen, most of whom, in accordance with the desire of the Commission, presented printed briefs which they made the basis of supplementary oral statements. Among those present during the earlier hearings were: J. J. Hamilton, representing the National Agricultural Press League; John Norriss, of the New York Times, representing the daily press; B. B. Herbert, representing the National Editorial Association; E. W. Bok, of the Ladies' Home Journal, representing the American Periodical Publishers' Association; Charles T. Root, of the Dry Goods Economist, representing the Federation of the Trade Press Associations in the United States, and other associations. Others present were W. Atkinson of Philadelphia, editor of the Farm Journal, who, under the name of "Job Jobson," has contributed considerably to the discussion of second-class mail legislation; David Williams of the Iron Age; R. R. Bowker of THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY and The Library Journal; William Green, who, with his father, S. W. Green, has always taken a leading part in the discussions of reforming second-class mail matter legislation; Emerson P. Harris, broker in periodicals, and representatives of the following journals: Printer's Ink, Saturday Evening Post, Good House-Keeping, American Agriculturist, Orange Judd Farmer, New England Homestead, Farm and Home, Interior, Iowa Homestead, Northwestern Agriculturist and Boyce's Weekly.

The general position taken by publishers was that the figures presented by the government had no business basis; that the deficit should be chargeable either to the $20,000,000 worth of free postage on government business or to the overpayments to the railways for mail transportation, or to the cost of rural free delivery, either one of which alone would more than cover the deficit, rather than to second-class matter; that any deficit on second-class matter was several times made up by the profits to the government on first-class mail, which were the direct result of the advertising on second-class matter, not to speak of the profit on the catalogues and merchandise at third and fourth-class mail also involved; that the correction of abuses should not involve interference with legitimate publishing, and that the restrictive features of postal administration and the complex and intricate postal regulations of second-class matter should be done away with.

A specific suggestion made by a conference of the agricultural and live stock press for the amendment of the law of 1879 was also included and adopted in the brief of the National Editorial Association, as follows:

"It must be originated and published for the dissemination of information of a public character, or devoted to literature, the sciences, arts, or some special industry, and having a legitimate list of subscribers. Subscriptions shall be deemed legitimate in all cases wherein the recipient of the publication or another than the recipient pays or in good faith agrees to pay for such publication for a definite period. Provided, however, that nothing herein contained shall be construed as to admit to the second class rate regular publications designed primarily for advertising purposes, or for free circulation, or for circulation at nominal rates."

NET PRICE PLAN OF THE ENGLISH PUBLISHERS' ASSOCIATION.

THE following are the new terms and conditions of supply of net books just promulgated by the Publishers' Association of Great Britain and Ireland:

TERMS AND CONDITIONS OF SUPPLY OF NET BOOKS.

We, the undersigned several firms of publishers, being desirous as far as possible of ensuring that books published at net prices (such books being hereinafter referred to as net books) shall not be sold to the public (including schools, libraries and institutions) at less than such net prices, hereby inform you that henceforth we shall only invoice and supply to you net books published by us or any of us on our usual trade terms provided you on your part agree to abide by the following conditions, viz.:

CONDITIONS OF SUPPLY TO RETAIL BOOKSELLERS.

1. Not to offer for sale or sell any such net book at less than the net price at which it is published, except as hereinafter mentioned;
2. Not to offer for sale or sell any second-hand copy of any such net book at less than the published price within 6 months of publication.
3. Not to treat as unsaleable or dead stock any new copy or copies of any such net book within 12 months of the date of your latest purchase of any copy or copies thereof, and then only such copy or copies of such latest purchase as shall remain in your hands.

4. Not to offer for sale or cause to be sold at a price below the published price any such dead stock as aforesaid without having first offered such dead stock to the publisher thereof at cost price, or at the proposed reduced price, whichever shall be the lower; and after such dead stock shall have been returned to the publisher, or with his assent sold off under the published price, not to offer for sale or sell or cause to be sold any further copy or copies of the same book below the published price.

CONDITIONS OF SUPPLY TO WHOLESALE DISTRIBUTING FIRMS.

5. To allow usual trade terms upon such net books to such retail customers only as consent to and abide by each of the above conditions of supply numbered 1 to 4.
6. Not to sell any such net book at less than the full net price at which it is published to any customer who shall offer for sale or cause to be sold any such net book contrary to the several conditions of supply above set forth.

In the event of your infringement of any one of these conditions we shall thereafter each require you to pay for all net books invoiced and supplied to you at the full net prices at which they are published.

The agreement has been signed by 289 publishing houses.

A MODEST SCHOLAR-BOOKSELLER.

CHARLES NODIER, the great French author, was also a great book-collector. On one of his book-hunting expeditions in Paris, according to Lauriat's Boston Book Notes, he entered a little stall at the corner of the Pont des Arts, kept by a poorly-dressed little man. Nodier soon became struck with the little bookseller's conversation and put a host of bibliographical questions to him, all of which were answered in a manner that completed the academician's surprise. Delighted to find so much learning under the well-worn coat of the book-stall keeper, Nodier asked his opinion on a new edition of Juvenal which Achaintre, the first Latinist of the day, had just brought out. At this the old man seemed confused. "Surely, monsieur," said Nodier, "you have heard of this monumental work, which will be the envy and despair of the German philologists." "The fact is, monsieur," replied the little man, with growing embarrassment, "the fact is that I am Achaintre."

Nicolas Louis Achaintre was born in Paris in 1771 and died there in 1830. His contributions to literature were the famous editions of Horace (1806), Juvenal (1810), and Perseus (1812), and a translation of the history of the Trojan war attributed to Dictys of Crete (1813). He also left a scholarly work in thirteen volumes on the "Cours d'humanité."

NEW YORK STATIONERS' HEAD-QUARTERS.

THE NEW YORK STATIONERS have made arrangements to lease quarters in the Merchants' Association Building, at 66 Lafayette Street, which is now approaching completion. Possession of the rooms is promised for December 1. The building is conveniently located, being but one block from Broadway and half a block from the Worth Street subway entrance.

The quarters, which are located on the seventh floor, will consist of a permanent office or directors' room, and an assembly room that can be secured for meetings of the association at any time when spoken for in advance. The directors' room measures 18 x 28 feet, and the assembly room is 29 feet square.

Located on the same floor will be the headquarters of the Master Printers, the Printers' Board of Trade, the Lithographers' Association, and the New York Typotheta.

Y. M. C. A. LECTURES ON PRINTING.

THE course of lectures on "Modern Printing" to be given at the West Side Y. M. C. A., 318 West Fifty-seventh Street, New York, the coming season, will begin October 10. The schedule for October is as follows: October 10, "History of Printing," John Clyde Oswald; October 17, "Type Making," Frank R. Atwood; October 24, "Type Faces," Edmund G. Cress; October 31, "Book Composition," Everett R. Currier.

COMMUNICATIONS.

"HUMAN NATURE" AND THE WAY OUT.

To the Editor of The Publishers' Weekly.

DEAR SIR: As in your editorial you remarked upon my plans being contra to "human nature" I may say:

Self-interest, opprobriously called "selfishness," is, indeed, the most powerful force in human affairs, as Spencer, Mill, et al., have pointed out. Nor is it necessarily evil. But it is sometimes almighty stupid and short sighted!

It certainly, up to date, has been the dominant force in the publishing business—"every fellow for himself and blank take the hindmost"—which blank has done, and will do!

Why have not publishers heretofore taken this "way out" to business prosperity, so obviously advantageous, and so easy, when it is fairly looked at?

Because "self" can't do it alone, and they have given no real thought to mutual good, to doing by simple co-operation what is impossible without it.

How dull of them!

Here are hundreds, if not thousands, of rich, cultured communities scattered over the nation, either actual buyers of books in a small way, or possible patrons of literature.

Individual publishers cannot afford the investment and expense necessary to place within their reach samples of their books, and there are not a hundred, if there are fifty, real book stores in the entire United States. Books are mainly handled as a side-line only, and commonly by men who know them only as so much "merchandise." An instance—only a few days ago a life-trained bookseller who really did not know Walter Savage Landor from L. E. Landon!

Here is such a town, for instance, as Troy, N. Y., from whence I am continually receiving mail orders for standard books, which local booksellers could furnish at 25 per cent. lower than I possibly can, postpaid, and make a good profit.

Individual publishers cannot greatly alter this ridiculous situation, acting by themselves, but acting together they can do so, and do it with big profit, putting a genuine book store into every town of 5000 population at least, and into thousands of smaller places; putting educated men in charge of them, who will really know something about literature as well as about nickels.

Why don't some publishers take up this subject now, and do something, or say "why?"

When I started this discussion I did not expect to have the field so nearly to myself, and don't want it. My interest in it, practically, is very slight, but otherwise is not slight, as you see.

Very respectfully,

JOHN B. ALDEN.

BIBLE HOUSE, N. Y. City.

OBITUARY NOTES.

DR. FELIX LEOPOLD OSWALD, physician, naturalist and author, was killed on September 27 by a railway train in the New York Central station at Syracuse, N. Y. Dr. Oswald was born in Namur, Belgium, December 6, 1845. He was graduated at the Brussels University in 1865, and he afterward studied at Göttingen and Heidelberg, taking the degree of M.A. and M.D. In 1866 he went to Mexico with a corps of Belgian volunteers. He afterward came to this country, and for many years he was a correspondent of French and English periodicals, particularly on scientific and nature topics. He was the author of a number of works, including "Physical Education," "Household Remedies," "Summerland Sketches," "The Poison Problem," "Zoological Sketches," "Days and Nights in the Tropics," "The Bible of Nature," and "Body and Mind." He also wrote many magazine and review articles. His home in recent years had been at Grand Rapids, Mich.

BIBLIOGRAPHIC NOTES.

CHARLES T. HARBECK, 32 Broadway (Room 1104), New York City, announces a privately printed "Bibliography of the History of the United States Navy," compiled by Charles T. Harbeck and revised and edited by Agnes C. Doyle, of the Boston Public Library. The bibliography includes the collections of the Boston Public Library and the New York Public Library (where Axel Mothe has rendered assistance in compiling the material,) United States documents to 1898, and matter from private collections and sale catalogues, making about three thousand titles. All the books included are carefully classed, and each class alphabetized, with description of imprint, paging, illustrations, plates, size, and other particulars; and when possible these details of imprint, etc., have been verified by the editor by comparison with the books themselves. The edition is limited to 350 copies, at $6 net. Miss Doyle at 36 Hillside Street, Roxbury, Mass., will also receive orders for the work.

CATALOGUES OF NEW AND SECOND-HAND BOOKS.—Karl W. Hiersemann, Leipzig, Americana, a selection of important mss. and books. (No. 326, 58 titles;) also, a collection of books, pamphlets, etc., on North, Central and South America, the West Indies, Philippine Islands, etc., including a catalogue of the famous Tournon collection. (No. 327, 1576+127 titles.)—Kimball Bros., 618 Broadway, Albany, N. Y., Americana, genealogy and miscellaneous. (No. 17, 236 titles.)—M. M. Peach, 37 Belvoir St., Leicester, Eng., mss., early printing, medical, etc. (No. 19, 459 titles.)—W. F. Stowe, 167 Clinton Ave., Kingston, N. Y., Americana, bibliography, first editions, etc. (No. 6, 405 titles.)—Herbert A. Thayer, 61 Prescott St., Newtonville, Mass., Theological, etc. (No. 31, 452 titles.)

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

CHARLES DICKENS's daughter, Mrs. Kate Perugini, has written a book about her father and his work. It is called "The Comedy of Charles Dickens."

THE October dinner of The Booksellers' League has been postponed until October 17, 7 P.M. Those desiring to attend must send word to Francis Gilman, at Charles Scribner's Sons, 153 Fifth Avenue, on or before October 15.

THOMAS WHITTAKER has just published Bishop Paret's book on "The Place and Function of the Sunday School in the Church," a popular treatise on the fundamental principles of the subject from the point of view of the church.

CUPPLES & LEON have just ready a new book by Edward B. Lent, author of "Being Done Good," entitled "Cupid's Middleman." The story, the scene of which is laid in New York City, has a good plot, and is entertaining throughout.

THE YOUNG CHURCHMAN COMPANY, Milwaukee, Wis., will publish on the 10th inst. a work in two volumes, entitled "Spiritual Studies in St. Luke's Gospel," by the Rev. Dr. Arthur Ritchie, author of "Spiritual Studies in St. Matthew's Gospel," "Sermons from St. Ignatius's Pulpit," etc.

GINN & Co. have just published "Stories from Famous Ballads," one of Grace Greenwood's most popular books, with an introduction by Miss Caroline Burnite, director of the Children's Department in the Public Library in Cleveland, and with full-page illustrations by Mrs. E. H. Garrett.

A. C. McCLURG & Co. publish to-day "Ridolfo, the Coming of the Dawn," by Egerton R. Williams, Jr., a splendidly constructed romance of fifteenth century Italy. The illustrations in color which J. C. Leyendecker has made for this story are nothing short of sensational in their power and beauty.

THE BATES AND GUILD COMPANY, Boston, have just brought out in their little series of Masters in Art a volume on Ghirlandajo. It is made up of the usual excellent reproductions, and the text embraces not only a well written sketch of the painter's career, but a number of interesting quotations from different writers. The series is useful and it is inexpensive.

DOUBLEDAY, PAGE & Co. will bring out on the 9th inst. George Iles's new book, "Inventors at Work;" "The Arab Horse," by Spencer Borden; "Dem Good Ole Times," by Mrs. James H. Dooley, and "Heroes Every Child Should know," by Dolores Bacon, which were originally promised for September 27. October 25 has now been set as the publication day of Anthony Fiala's book, "Fighting the Polar Ice."

THE comparative uniformity of preparation required for entrance to the colleges of the United States, accomplished through the institution of a "Board on College Entrance Requirements," has made it possible to prescribe specifically the work which must be done by the student in order to prepare for examination. Ginn & Company have recently printed a convenient and complete list of the requirements in English. Copies will be sent postpaid to any address on request.

THE AMERICAN LAW BOOK COMPANY, 76 William Street, New York, will publish at once as a part of its "Cyclopedia of Law and Procedure," a treatise on "International Law," by David J. Brewer, Associate Justice of the Supreme Court of the United States, and Charles Henry Butler, reporter of the Supreme Court of the United States. The authors trace the development of international law from its beginning down to the present day, including even the recent Calvo and Greco doctrines.

RALPH STRAUS, 58 Bassett Road, North Kensington W., Eng., is soliciting subscriptions for a work entitled "John Baskerville, a Memoir," by Ralph Straus and Robert K. Dent. The work is based on materials for a "Life of Baskerville" collected by the late Mr. Samuel Timmins, of Birmingham, and given over by his literary executors to R. K. Dent, librarian of the Aston Manor Free Library. With his collaboration the present memoir has been compiled by Mr. Straus, who has added a bibliography.

THE REILLY & BRITTON Co. are placing a considerable line of advertising on "Daughters of Destiny," Schuyler Staunton's new novel. Initial orders have taken about all of the first edition and the book is now in press for a second printing. The publishers feel that in this book they have a strong story, the plot of which is laid in that little-known country Baluchistan, which has given the author a rare opportunity for producing a story full of action as well as romance. The story has been most elaborately illustrated in colors by Thomas Mitchell Peirce and Harold De Lay.

THE CENTURY COMPANY will publish shortly a new volume of Richard Watson Gilder's verse under the title of "A Book of Music." It is to contain those of Mr. Gilder's poems, published and unpublished, which relate to music either directly or symbolically. They have secured the American rights to Richard Whiteing's "Ring in the New," which has been warmly commended by the English critics. It is another story of how the other half lives, or tries to live, in London and resembles "The Long Day" in that it pictures the struggles of an unskilled girl to earn her living in a large city.

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS have just ready a new book on the law and its administration, by Arthur C. Train, entitled "The Prisoner at the Bar." Although containing numerous anecdotes, the volume is primarily a discussion of the workings of justice, especially in New York City. An analysis is included of the cause for the increase of crime, the author suggesting remedies. Mr. Train, whose "McAllister and His Double" will be remembered, also has something to say concerning the faults and virtues of the present system of municipal justice.

ALDEN BROTHERS, Bible House, New York, have put in pamphlet form, under the title of "Book Troubles Ended," the series of contributions by John B. Alden to the trade press on "The Way Out," for publishers and booksellers, in which plans are presented for considering the curing of demoralized and unprofitable conditions, which at least form suggestive bases for thought and discussion. The pamphlet may be had free upon application to the publishers. They have also prepared for free distribution a pamphlet entitled "Autobiography of a Book Pirate," describing the career and publishing activity of John B. Alden.

HARPER & BROTHERS have just ready Robert Hichens's new novel, "The Call of the Blood;" "A Japanese Blossom," by Onoto Watanna, a quaint domestic comedy narrating the fortunes of a Japanese-American family which becomes involved in the recent war between Japan and Russia; "A Little Son of Sunshine," by Ellen Douglas Deland, a story for children, the hero of which is a little lame boy; "The Beautiful Story of Doris and Julie," a story for little readers, by Gertrude Smith, with colored illustrations by W. E. Mears; also, a holiday edition of "The Life of Christ—Without, Within," two sermons by the late Henry Ward Beecher.

T. J. MCBRIDE & SON will publish on the 8th inst. "Princess Maritza," a story which is described by a competent critic as "vastly entertaining, with so much dash and go that one would never question the truth of anything said or done by any one in the story." The small court of Sturatzberg furnishes the background for the story, and there is the pomp of an earlier day, the interest of all European nations, a weak and wavering king on a tottering throne, duplicity on every hand, "brave men and fair women," brigands and what not, to make this story full to overflowing with interest. Harrison Fisher has furnished some very attractive pictures.

FLEMING H. REVELL COMPANY will publish shortly what is said to be a very striking book on present-day conditions in our country entitled "America's Awakening," by Philip Loring Allen. As his magazine articles have shown, Mr. Allen has some rather new and striking interpretations of the moral wave as touching the average man in politics and in business. He is yet a young man, but has been an eye-witness of pretty nearly everything he writes of, first as Washington correspondent of New York and Boston dailies and later on New York newspaper representative during the close of the Folk campaign in Missouri and the La Follette campaign in Wisconsin. Mr. Allen is now on the staff of the New York Evening Post.

THE MACMILLAN COMPANY have just brought out Edward Everett Hale's "Tarry At Home Travels," with many illustrations, in which the author urges his readers to discover America; Frederic Harrison's "Memories and Thoughts;" "The Modern Pulpit," by Lewis O. Brastow, D.D., author of "Representative Modern Preachers;" "Concepts of Philosophy," by Alexander Thomas Ormond, D.D., author of "The Foundations of Knowledge;" "The Education of an Artist," by C. Lewis Hind, author of "Days with Velasquez;" a new edition of "The Social Life of Scotland in the Eighteenth Century," by Henry Grey Graham, author of "Scottish Men of Letters in the Eighteenth Century;" Emerson's "Representative Men," in the new series of Macmillan's Pocket Classics; and new editions of Brandes's "Main Currents in Nineteenth Century Literature" and Turgenev's works, translated by Constance Garnett.

L. C. PAGE & Co. will publish on the 15th inst. "The Little Colonel, Maid of Honor," by Mrs. Annie Fellows Johnston. "The Little Colonel" still maintains her position as one of the finest types of Southern girlhood, and the other favorites among her friends and associates form an interesting and lovable group of young people. The scene of the new volume is laid at "The Little Colonel's" home, Locust, in Kentucky, an ideal setting for the festivities and merriment of a typical Southern wedding, which Mrs. Johnston charmingly describes. They have just ready a holiday edition of one of Mrs. Johnston's popular books, "The Giant Scissors," which originally appeared in their Cosy Corner Series. This new edition is printed from new plates, with illustrations and decorations in color, from drawings by Frank T. Merrill, and is a companion volume to the holiday editions of "The Little Colonel" and "Two Little Knights of Kentucky." The three volumes are also sold boxed as a set.

G. P. PUTNAM'S SONS have just ready in the Connoisseur's Library a handsomely illustrated work of particular interest to librarians, booksellers and book collectors, entitled "English Colored Books," by Martin Hardie, who begins his history with a description of the Mainz Psalter, and carries the record down to the color processes of the present day; "Haydn's Dictionary of Dates" brought down to the spring of this year; "Shibusawa, or, the Passing of Old Japan," by I. William Adams, a romance based upon the fall of the Shogunate and the restoration of the Mikados; also, "Twilight Fairy Tales" and "The Enchanted Land," two volumes of children's stories, respectively by Mrs. Balington Booth and Louey Chisholm. They will bring out shortly a work on "Hunting Big Game" in the United States, Canada and old Mexico, by William S. Thomas; also, "The Man of Property," by John Galsworthy, a story in which a group of people embodying a heavy Philistinism is contrasted with people of an artistic temperament and artistic ideals.

GEORGE FRENCH, a well-known writer on printing and graphic art matters, advertising, and kindred subjects, has succeeded James Barrett Kirk as editor of Profitable Advertising, the change becoming effective with the October number. Mr. French started as a country printer and then became a country editor. Afterwards he became a reporter on a city daily, then city editor, managing editor and editor-in-chief. He finished his newspaper career as second in rank in the business office of the New York Journal several years ago. Since then he has devoted the larger part of his time to the study and investigation of printing and advertising, contributing to the technical and trade journals, acting as an expert in printing, and occasionally giving talks before societies and clubs. He has thoroughly studied the question of graphic art as it may be applied to printing and advertising, and has designed and seen through the press many fine books and important pieces of advertising literature. He is one of the founders of the Boston Society of Printers and a member of its council.

THE CENTURY COMPANY has two lots of books scheduled for October, the dates of issue October 13 and 27. The art edition of Maria Hornor Lansdale's "The Châteaux of Touraine," to be beautiful with many color reproductions of Jules Guérin's drawings, is announced for issue the earlier date. October 13 is also the date of the book publication of Frederick Trevor Hill's "Lincoln the Lawyer," Anne Warner's humorous "Seeing France with Uncle John," and H. G. Wells's "In the Days of the Comet." On the same date will appear Henry M. Hyde's "The Upstart;" and, for younger readers, Helen Nicolay's "The Boys' Life of Lincoln," Ralph Henry Barbour's "The Crimson Sweater," and the new collection of "Fairy Stories from St. Nicholas." October 27 will bring the issue of Richard Watson Gilder's new volume of poems, "A Book of Music," and three new Thumb-nails. This is the date also for "Queen Silver-Bell" and "Racketty-Packetty House," the first of the series of fairy tales by Frances Hodgson Burnett. There will appear also on this date John

Bennett's new novel, "Peyre Gaillard," and Dorothea Deakin's "Georgie."

WILLIAM J. BURKHARDT, 206 Ocean Avenue, Jersey City, N. J., has prepared a number of stationery novelties which are original in design and artistically executed. Among some of these are new stationery desk boxes in a holly case something like the mission wood rack which proved very popular last year; die-stamped holly envelopes, in eight numbers ranging from $2\frac{3}{4} \times 4\frac{1}{8}$ to $10\frac{1}{2} \times 7\frac{1}{2}$ inches; fine art photogravure pen-wipers heart-shaped, in red and brown ooze skin, with photogravure centre and lettered, "With Hearty Christmas Greeting;" holly wrapping paper, in three sizes, with a holly design label in the centre of each sheet; heart key-rings, a unique Christmas token, consisting of a nickle key-ring holding a kid-finished card in the shape of a Yale key, on which is stamped a Christmas greeting; also broom pencils, on the handles of which is a card with greetings of the holiday season. Besides these there are calendar pads in ten sizes, portmonaie calendars and stamp cases, and illustrated post cards among which are a number of designs specially suited for holiday purposes. Mr. Burkhardt offers to send orders to the amount of \$5 or more prepaid to any address. His catalogue is well worth study, and will be sent upon application.

LITTLE, BROWN & Co. have just ready "The Master Spirit," by Sir William Magnay, author of "The Red Chancellor," etc., a powerful romance of English social and political life, with illustrations by John Cameron; "The Queen's Hostage," by Harriet T. Comstock, author of "Tower or Throne," etc., a story of love and adventure in England in the time of Queen Elizabeth, illustrated by Clyde O. De Land; "Story of Scraggles," by George Wharton James, author of "The Old Missions of California," etc., the autobiography of a song sparrow, in which the unusual instance of a friendship between man and one of the lower animals is described; "Mars and Its Mystery," by Edward S. Morse, a book for the general reader; "From Dream to Vision of Life," by Lilian Whiting, described as "a study of life from the mere transient dream to the radiant eternal vision;" "Forget-Me-Not," poetical selections arranged for daily reading by Anna Mellen Stearns and Clara Bancroft Beatley; "A Syllogistic Philosophy," by Dr. Francis Ellingwood Abbot, a "modernization of philosophy to harmonize with modern science;" also, the following juveniles: "Ready the Reliable," another delightful dog story by Lily F. Wesselhoeft, with illustrations by Chase Emerson; "A Sheaf of Stories," twelve hitherto uncollected stories by Susan Coolidge, with pictures by J. W. F. Kennedy; also, "The Girls of Pineridge," by Charlotte Curtis Smith, a story of delightful natural children, with illustrations by Beatrice Baxter Ruyl.

HOUGHTON, MIFFLIN & Co. have just brought out "The County Road," a collection of stories of rural New England, by Alice Brown, who has a happy combination of sympathetic knowledge of New England character with keen appreciation of the genuine humor that is one of the real New England traits; "Walt Whitman," by Bliss Perry, the editor of the Atlantic Monthly, a full biographical and critical study of one of the most remarkable personages in American literature, containing not only new biographical data, but many hitherto unprinted letters illustrating the singular history of Whitman's literary reputation; "Polly and the Aunt," by the Aunt, a new book by the author of "Little Jane and Me," made up of sketches taken from life; "Books, Culture and Character," by J. N. Larned, a useful little volume which opens with a discussion of the selection of books to be made by one who wishes to get the widest culture with the least misdirected effort; the "Complete Poems of Edward Rowland Sill," in the Household edition; "The Poetry of Chaucer," by Robert K. Root, a well-arranged study which aims to make accessible to the general reader the fruits of all the scholarly investigations from Tyrwhitt to the present day, so far as they are helpful to a fuller appreciation of the poet and his work; "Ecclesiastes in the Metre of Omar," by William B. Forbush, a paraphrase of the old Hebrew book in the familiar quatrains of FitzGerald, which will be especially interesting to lovers of poetry and to Bible students; "The English Patents of Monopoly," which presents material on this important phase of economic history not hitherto available, for which the author, William H. Price, received the David A. Wells prize in economics for 1905, and which forms Volume I. of the Harvard Economic Studies; also, a new edition of James E. Munson's "Dictionary of Practical Phonography," with an "Appendix of Revised Outlines," that may also be had separately.

TERMS OF ADVERTISING.

Under the heading "Books Wanted," book-trade subscribers are given the privilege of a free advertisement for books out of print, of five nonpareil lines, exclusive of address, in any issue except special numbers, to an extent not exceeding 100 lines a year. If more than five lines are sent, the excess is at 10 cents a line, and amount should be inclosed. Bids for current books and such as may be easily had from the publishers, and repeated matter, as well as all advertisements from non-subscribers, must be paid for at the rate of 10 cents a line.

Under the heading "Books for Sale," the charge to subscribers and non-subscribers is 10 cents a nonpareil line for each insertion. No deduction for repeated matter.

All other small undisplayed advertisements will be charged at the uniform rate of 10 cents a nonpareil line. Eight words may be reckoned to the line.

Parties with whom we have no accounts must pay in advance, otherwise no notice will be taken of their Communications.

BOOKS WANTED.

In answering, please state edition, condition, and price, including postage or express charges. Houses that are willing to deal exclusively on a cash-on-delivery basis will find it to their advantage to put after their firm-name the word [Cash].

Write your wants plainly and on one side of the sheet only. Illegibly-written "wants" will be considered as not having been received. The "Publishers' Weekly" does not hold itself responsible for errors.

It should be understood that the appearance of advertisements in this column, or elsewhere in the "Publishers' Weekly" does not furnish a guarantee of credit. While it is endeavored to safeguard these columns by withdrawing the privilege of their use from advertisers who are not "good pay," book-sellers should take the usual precaution, as to advertisers not known to them, that they would take in making sales to any unknown parties.

KIPLING'S

NEW BOOK

MR. KIPLING has again touched high-water mark in an entirely new kind of story. By his magic the reader sees pass before him knights and robbers and pirates in some of the most exciting events in old English history.

The New York Tribune says: "It does not matter that this is a book of stories for children. We should like to see the grown reader who could resist its charm. The old craft is at work, the old glamour is thrown over every page."

Puck of Pook's Hill

Illustrated in Color by ARTHUR RACKHAM. $1.50

BEAUTIFUL HOLIDAY EDITION

THE JOYOUS MIRACLE

By FRANK NORRIS

THIS little story of Christ is one of the most perfect things ever written by the man whom many leading critics thought liable to become our greatest American novelist. It is very short, but we have undertaken to give it a dress worthy of its literary quality. Frontispiece in color by HERTER. Net, 75 cents. (Postage 8 cents.)

Fall and Holiday Publications

Holyland

By GUSTAV FRENSEN, Author of "Jorn Uhl"

The exclusive authorized translation of "Holyland," pronounced by competent critics to be the greatest novel of modern times. Of this work in the German version, eighty thousand copies were sold almost immediately after its publication. The scenes and characters are drawn from among the humble sea-faring folk who live on the borders of the German Ocean. Their life, love and suffering are wonderfully shown and described. The hero, Kai Jans, makes several long sea voyages of which the descriptions are wonderfully vivid and interesting.

Cloth, 12mo, $1.50

Jorn Uhl

By GUSTAV FRENSEN

A powerful story of modern German life and the literary sensation of Europe. Over 200,000 copies were sold within eighteen months of issue. The story touches upon many of the social and ethical problems of the day. The plot is of engrossing interest, and the characters almost turn into flesh and blood before our eyes, they are drawn with such tremendous realism. This novel will stand as a book of real worth, as a sincere criticism of life, and a poet's interpretation of the life of man and the wonder of the universe of God.

Cloth, 12mo, $1.50

The Sands of Pleasure

By FILSON YOUNG. A Strong Book on a Terrible Theme

"Here is a story for mature men and women. . . . A strong, well-written, intimate study of a subject usually tabooed in the literature of English-speaking people."—Chicago Inter-Ocean.

"'The Sands of Pleasure' is a book that cannot be neglected. It must be read."—Boston Transcript.

Cloth, illustrated with color frontispiece, $1.50

The Nature Lovers' Treasury

Edited by CARRIE THOMPSON LOWELL, Editor of "The Art Lovers' Treasury"

This volume forms a gift-book whose appeal must prove well-nigh universal. It comprises a compilation made with rare skill and taste from the prose and poetry of the great nature writers. The extracts are illustrated by numerous exquisite pictures from originals of distinguished artists reproduced in half-tone.

Cloth, net $1.20 (Postage extra)

Young Folks' Nature Field Book

CATALOGUE

Our "Fall Announcement" pamphlet containing descriptions of the new books named below is ready: We issue to-day Mrs. Hugh Fraser's "In the Shadow of the Lord," a romance of the Washingtons. $1.50.—Miss Mary Moss's "The Poet and the Parish," a striking and entertaining picture of the inner nature of an American poet, by one of our best known critics, $1.50.—Mrs. Dolores M. Bacon's "A King's Divinity," a good love story, full of humor and humanity, illustrated, $1.50.—Miss Taggart's "Daddy's Daughters," a story for girls by a notable author whose work has been favorably compared with that of Miss Alcott. Illustrated. $1.50.

The advance orders for DeMorgan's "Joseph Vance" have been large for a novel by a new author. The first American reviews are echoing the enthusiastic praise of the English ones, and even favorably comparing this book with the work of such contrasted masters as Dickens, Thackeray, Fielding and Sterne. Mr. Stevenson's "Affairs of State" was sent to press for the second time on the day of publication. Charles Duff Stuart's "Casa Grande" is a highly picturesque tale of old California well worth consideration. Miss Sinclair's "Audrey Craven," a highly effective story of a coquette, has already gone into a second printing, and is receiving enthusiastic notices.

Among books that we have just had to reprint are Dr. Burton's Biblical play, "Rahab"; Mr. Haynes's "Election of Senators"; Miss Sinclair's "The Divine Fire" (14th printing); Mrs. Rankin's "Dandelion Cottage" (4th printing), and Lavignac's "Music and Musicians" (7th printing).

We shall issue on the 13th "A Cheerful Year Book," which we believe we honestly can say is something new. Boxed, $1.50 net (by mail, $1.62).—C. William Beebe's long expected book on "The Bird," with 370 original illustrations. 496 pp., square 8vo, $3.50 net (by mail, $3.80).—"The Cruise of the Violetta," by Arthur Colton, author of "The Belted Seas."—"A Romance of Old Wars," by Valentina Hawtrey. A tale of old France told with rare simplicity and deep feeling. $1.50.

"THE STRUGGLE"

By SIDNEY C. TAPP

The Star-Chronicle, of St. Louis, Mo., recently gave three columns of news items, with life size portrait of the author, and a translation of the characters in the book.

The Baltimore World, two columns; Atlanta Georgia, two columns; The Denver Post, two columns; and thus, the press throughout the country is giving news space to it.

The question they are asking: Are the villains of the book real in our civilization? The book is here not for a day, but for a time.
